Dear Parents and Carers,

This is guidance we have received from the council today.

You may have recently become aware of a poster circulating on social media titled "Red vs Blue", which appears to show schools in opposition to each other, using inflammatory language such as "All Rivalry, No Mercy" and encouraging fights between pupils. These have been circulating across London with different schools named in various combinations.

In the last 24 hours, we have become aware that schools in the local area have also been named. Police and Safeguarding Partners across the borough are aware and are working hard to combat this risk by increasing community presence and targeting areas where pupils are likely to be.

We ask that you speak with children about staying safe, making responsible choices, and reporting anything that concerns them to a trusted adult. Whilst this poster is circulating, we recommend that you encourage your child to return home immediately after school and not to congregate in public spaces.

Police also recommend that the posters are not shared further via social media if these are sent to you.

If you have any information or concerns, we encourage you to share this by calling Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

You can report anonymously online at <https://www.fearless.org/en/give-info>.

You can also report by calling 101 or on the MET's website at Report a crime | Metropolitan Police.

Any immediate concerns please call 999.

Your faithfully

Sue Hayward
